The software can also help you decide when to replace your hdd or other hardware, but as we all know, it's no fun to look for replacements when they're needed. So the most important question is: what do you have to do to get it to work? WIPER uses a single command line string to clean up several folders at once. This command line has a lot of things. The first thing it takes is the path to a folder, and the second is a list of registry keys to delete or to modify. You may not be able to get it to work, even if you have the right version of Windows, but it's definitely worth a try. If it doesn't work, or if it doesn't work like you expect it to, please tell us so we can fix it.
