Q: Powershell read.csv file with comma as decimal separator I am creating a powershell script that will read a text file with a pipe delimited.csv. I'm using this line to read: $reader = New-Object System.IO.StreamReader ($PathText, $PathEncoding)

---

However, the text file will be read with comma separators and I believe the script will read it as text and not as a CSV file. Any ideas how I can do this? Thanks in advance.

A: The CSV you have is not actually a CSV. it's a pipe-delimited text file. In fact, your file has two kinds of delimiters: pipe and tab.

There's no built-in PowerShell support to parse a delimited text file with respect to its delimiter. You'll need to process the file manually.

Try $reader = New-Object

System.IO.StreamReader ($PathText) $str = [System.IO.StreamReader]::new()
w()

$str.BaseStream.Position
= 0 $str.ReadLine() while (($str.ReadLine()) -ne [string]::Empty) { foreach($line in $str.ReadLine()) { # your
