Technical Field The present invention relates to an apparatus and method for providing prescription medication to consumers. In particular, the present invention relates to a computer system and method for prescribing proper medication in consumer settings. 2. Description of the Related Art A great deal of effort is currently being directed toward providing prescription medication to consumers in retail settings. Typically, consumers can purchase prescription medication from a retail pharmacy by simply providing a prescription from a physician and obtaining the medication. Additionally, businesses often provide prescription medication to consumers as a customer incentive, such as for filling out a contest entry. These traditional systems suffer from several disadvantages. Prescription guidelines have recently been established by governmental bodies to increase the likelihood that medications are safe. However, these guidelines are difficult to establish and enforce. Furthermore, compliance with the guidelines may be difficult to monitor. Additionally, traditional systems require pharmacists to oversee the dispensing of prescription medications to consumers. This may 3da54e8ca3
