User can check the whole software by downloading application.Q: On middle clicking the link I am making a hover effect on a link as the link is being clicked i want the hover effect to stay and at the same time on middle clicking the link the link should be clicked. Like when i click to a link say it takes me to the example.com is there a way to keep the link on the same page but be able to click the middle of the link to the same page but not the link. Here is my code `$(a).hover(function () { $(a).css({ cursor: 'pointer' }); }, function () { $(a).css({ cursor: 'auto' }); });`; A: You have a couple options. The first one is to modify the behavior of the link and the second one is modifying the link itself and removing the middle click action. Modify the link As mentioned, you could potentially modify the behavior of your link via JQuery. You can add a "click" function to the link that looks like this: `$(a).click(function() { window.location = this.getAttribute('href'); return false; });` Change the middle click event to not be triggered You could prevent the link from being triggered by changing the type of the event to "mousedown" and then just return. `$(a).mousedown(function() { return false; });` If you wanted to add a JQuery style that does the same thing, you could add an "mousedown:prevent" and "mousedown:true" class. Something like this: `$('.parent').on('` 82138339de
