Here, we describe the construction of a library of mobilizable Tn7 end point in M. tuberculosis H37Rv. By random insertion of Tn7 to occur within a spectrum of mutations in genes, Tn7 in the library bears a special characteristic, transposition frequency (TF). In addition, we also developed a high-efficiency liposome transfection system for M. tuberculosis to make the mutant library. The mutant library that we have constructed is very suitable for mutational analysis and also other genetic applications. Q: Can you show a particular "there is no continuous function" proof? If there is no continuous function that takes values in $\mathbb{Q} \cap [0,1]$ and is strictly increasing on \mathbb{Q} this can be proven by taking any two irrationals x, y and any rational q . It is easy to show that f is continuous at q because the distance between the graphs of f and the continuous function $f(x) = 1 + \frac{x-q}{x-q+1}$ will be 0 (uniform distance between the two functions). However, is it possible to show that it is continuous at x ? A: If the function is continuous in rational numbers, i.e., $f(p) = f(q)$ for all rational p and q , then f must be continuous in real numbers. Suppose not. Then there exists $r, s \in \mathbb{R}$ with r
