This software is a combination of Wondershare Photo Studio and Photogene, and its primary function is to enable the user to view, organize and modify their photos. You can view and edit photos in either Standard or Full Screen mode. On the other hand, you will find two tabs on top of the application's interface – File and Edit. The former includes various views on your pictures, while the latter features a photo selection tool and various image editing tools. To open and close an image, you will find the following options: Zoom in/out, Rotate, Flip, and Scale. It is also possible to control the size and quality of your photos, as well as apply the following: posterize, sepia, negative, sharpen, blur, noise, invert, and half tone. There is also an option to trim the photo's borders and a button to add a watermark. Photo Studio's second tab features several utilities, and you can use them in the following order: Duplicate, Rotate, Flip, Crop, Straighten, Color, Enhance, Adjust, Clone and Red Eye. You will be able to perform several tasks with the program, such as merge multiple photos into one, find duplicate images, or automatically edit image information. To export your photos in JPG, GIF, PNG, BMP, TIF, PCD, PSD, EMF, SGI, ICO, TGA, TIF, etc., you will have to perform a couple of steps. The first one is to select the image you want to export, while the second includes a number of functions. You can find a button which will enable you to generate thumbnails for your images, manage them, as well as protect them with a password. Furthermore, you can select one of the following levels regarding the picture's size: 200 KB, 400 KB, 600 KB, 800 KB, 1 MB, 1.5 MB, 2 MB, 2.5 MB and 3 MB. Along with editing images, you can also manage your calendars. That said, you should know you can generate new ones, select any recurring event, modify the days and hours, as well as add or remove dates. To view a calendar, you will need to perform the following: View, Create, Reset, Delete, Recur and Sync. There is also a pop-up menu which enables you to adjust an image

Being in the field of IT, we get to hear many terms such as mail servers, server, email servers, and web servers. But what are all these terms and how can we properly use them? Let us first see what these terms mean? In simple terms, a web server is nothing but a computer server that provides a website, a web page, a landing page or some other type of information to a customer. The web server is the system that is responsible for delivering and providing the contents that the customer sees on the screen, without the customer being able to see the system itself. The email server is the system that is responsible for delivering the messages that are received in the email to their intended recipients. The email server is usually used when the messages are usually sent between two or more computers. A mail server is nothing but a computer system that is responsible for delivering the email messages to their intended recipients. It is used in case the computer is not connected to a network, is not used often or is not connected to the internet at the moment. A server is the system which is responsible for receiving, managing and delivering any kind of information that is requested by the customer. The server is usually used in case the customer sends an order to the company using a computer, and the company must send the order to the right person to fulfill it. Mail servers are computer systems which are responsible for the delivery and management of email messages. They may also be used to store emails which were sent or received and to retrieve messages that were stored in them. How can we use these terms? Let us start from an easy one. 1. Web Server A web server is usually used for providing a website. A web server stores the necessary files, and provides a page to the customer who visits the website. It is also responsible for delivering the page contents. For example, you have a business, and you have a page in your website that is designed to offer a new customer some information. It includes a few details about you and your business. Now, if a customer lands on that page, he will not be able to see the system of your company, but he will be able to see the page contents. 2. Server A server is the system that is connected to a network. It is responsible for the reception, management and delivery of any type of information that is requested. For example, if you have a server
