To study the effects of Claviceps on grass roots of paddy field. The eggs of Claviceps purpurea were transplanted to the grass roots of paddy field in pot. The dynamic changes of grass root were observed, and the amount of chlorophyll, soluble protein and starch of the grass roots, and the dry weight of the grass roots were measured. The average length and diameter of the roots were 4.5cm and 2.3 mm respectively. The fresh weight, dry weight, chlorophyll content, soluble protein content and starch content of the grass roots were increased significantly after transplantation. In the last two years of the experiment, the dry weight, soluble protein content and starch content of the grass roots was increased 2, 2.44 and 1.95 times respectively, and the starch content of the grass roots was increased 6.66 times. The grass roots were damaged by infection of Claviceps purpurea.

The damage of grass roots was more serious at the reproductive phase than at the seedling phase. ◆
