SevenBears sets a new standard for music games by offering an experience unlike any other. The world and characters of The Academy: Collapsed Universe are full of personality and are as dynamic as the music that goes along with them. Having successfully released 8 critically acclaimed games across all genres, SevenBears is now taking their skills to a much larger canvas with The Academy: Collapsed Universe. Our team of artists, musicians and composers came together with a shared vision for the game. The Academy is an experimental game where music and sound is the primary focus, and as such, the soundtrack is unlike anything we've done before. The Academy Soundtrack Spotify Twitter Facebook OfficialSite: Spotify: Apple: Some of you may know that I have been making remixes of this game's soundtrack for some time now, and I have finally gotten round to releasing the track. I hope you enjoy this, as I do making it, and I hope it's a good fit for the game. If you do enjoy the track, feel free to leave a comment or follow the work. The track was made with Adobe Audition, and it is included in my sample pack which I am offering a special price for. If you want it, feel free to email me at scar.dave@hotmail.co.uk. Features Key:

- Realms: There are currently 13 realms (default plus 6 more realms available at a later date).
- Realm Design: Our goal is to allow all of the possible configurations through the realm system. The realm system is flexible. Some configurations are simpler or smaller than others, but a dedicated realm requires enough players to sustain it. For example, a region with a dozen characters might not make sense.
- Realm Play: Realm play gives the player far more options to succeed or fail.
- Realm Management: Realm management allows the player to view the status of her characters, the mobs on different realms, and the capabilities of her realm.
- Realm Trading: Both the player character and the character's faction can trade with other players and with the mobs. The trade function expands realm management by allowing the player to manage, profitably, other players in their realm or on other realms.
- Cross realm Optimization: Cross realm optimization ties all of these features together.

Each realm is represented by a line. Mob counts, character counts, and so on show up on the lines of each realm. Players can drag their characters and/or all characters to optimal locations for trading in the area they are playing. Keep an eye out for this feature coming to the main game soon.

- Player vs. Player Deathmatch: Character death matches give the player infinitely long lives (max is 1 week) and 3000000 mob points.
- Realm Details: Realm details give you an idea of what your realm is like, in detail.
- Drop Shop: Drop shop lets you balance your character. The character, factions, and abilities can all be changed to what you want.
- Faction Tools: Factions are a part of setting up your realm, mixing factions and creating invincible characters. NOTE: The faction tools are not released right now. This feature is still in progress and developers are still working on it.
- Faction Overhaul: Faction overhaul will give us the ability to add dozens of factions to the game.

Astro Sentai Jitaro J-bolts is a role-playing video game for the PlayStation Portable, developed by Arc System Works under the direction of Character Designer Yoshiyuki Sadamoto. It is a spin-off of the Beast Wars World series and PlayStation 2 and PlayStation Portable-based games Astro Sentai 1990 to 2010. Astro Jitaro: Battle Inside the Belt Released in 2005, it features the voices of Jun Fukuyama and Shunsuke Nakamura as Jitaro and Swindler, respectively. Storyline The criminal organization 'NPN' (Northern People's Network) establishes a plan to succeed in a robbery in Tokyo Tower and uses Tetsuya (Gloss; voiced by Jun Fukuyama) to steal the Gemstone that powers the entire tower. In the middle of the Tokyo Tower, an attack occurs where Tetsuya is saved by a mysterious person who claimed to be a guardian of the tower, Jitaro, who claims that he is to cleanse the Gemstone of the criminal and their traces. The well-known TV series Tetsuya vs Gashapon Machine appears briefly during this "save scene". "Jitaro" is an unofficial English name, although of a similar pronunciation to "Jo-hī-ra" (an alteration to the first "i" to be silent). In Japan this word is usually used to refer to Jitaro as the hero in the series, and is often directly borrowed into Western titles like this. As such, it is more fitting to directly use the name Jitaro for this official game for that reason. Gameplay The game played is the players' side of the story line with the antagonist's side of the story line taking place within the television show Tetsuya vs. Gashapon Machine which can be watched from within the game In this game Jitaro's standard attacks are as follows; Dash Heaven: Jitaro can dash high into the air smashing any enemies he comes in contact with, Glide Cloak: Jitaro dashes through the air with a semi-transparent but partial casting effect as he glides during his gliding dash, Double Heaven: Jitaro dashes flying towards the ground shattering anything in his path and slashing it multiple times with a long-range cleaver attack, Dash Thunder: Jitaro runs at maximum speed towards any foe that he comes in contact with and runs back and

Oceania is a land where magic is a part of everyday life. Mana, power and energy surges between objects – and never more than when one's home begins to twist and turn. Demons created by the spoiled magic that threatens to destroy the world begin wreaking havoc. You are a normal mortal, and you must fight against the tide of demons that threatens to consume the entire world. You are a Guardian of Sorcery. Your search for an elixir of eternal life and power is leaving you drained. You will start to lose yourself to the power of the world around you. And so you must decide to fight for yourself, or to use others. But in this world where magic is alive and so is the corruption you must try to keep the balance. To perform sorcery, you must learn to unlock the secrets of mana and power. It is not enough to simply unlock them. You must learn how to control them. The essence of Sorcery is freedom. Freedom to create, to make things happen. You can take the path of great heroes that save the world, or you can become a sorcerer and shape it. More information can be found here: use it for a good cause. But there are many other charities that could stand to use recycled clothes. It's just the way I do business." These are the sort of people who can make a big difference in this world. For you, too, there's a better life, out there in this great universe. So live and give and enjoy it. Be happy. And just know that one way or another, we have each other. This article originally appeared in the September/October 2014 issue of Secular Perspectives.Photo: FOX The first time I met Simon Cowell, he was in a casual business attire, sans tie, and he had that gorgeous ruddy complexion you only see on U.K. soccer hooligans. I don't know if I went into a trance or what, but I spoke with him at length. He asked me about my acting career, and I was almost too stunned to respond. I said something non-sensical (What did you just say?) and he laughed, saying, "I think this is the greatest start I've ever had in my life." This anecdote may or may not be true, but I do know
