St. Louis Confirms It's Hosting 2020 Democratic Convention St. Louis has been picked to host the Democratic National Convention in 2020, beating out Los Angeles, Dallas and Washington, D.C. The decision was made by the Democratic National Committee. The party says it decided to take the majority vote of the committee, although presidential candidate Hillary Clinton received 11 of the 13 votes, CNN reported. "St. Louis will be the place where Democrats from all 50 states and territories come together to nominate the party's candidates for the presidency, vice presidency, national committee positions and many other executive positions," said Scott Holste, DNC member from Missouri and chair of the committee's Unity and Diversity Steering Committee, who presented the recommendation to the full committee. "As a loyal St. Louisan, it is an honor and a privilege to have the opportunity to host the 2020 Democratic National Convention here in my hometown, and to work alongside our bonus00:50 Lightning Strikes Stockpiles of a Gas Dam Near Gloucester, Virginia A lightning strike resulted in the release of about 1 million cubic feet of gasoline from a tanker that damaged two houses. At a Glance The leak was contained by Wednesday. About 24,000 people live nearby. Streets have been reopened in the neighborhood. The Uno Casino in nearby Kenilworth was evacuated. An unprecedented gasoline and propane leak in Gloucester County, Virginia has forced a shelter-in-place order in one town while residents block streets to prevent the spread of fuel, and it won't go away unless a cap is placed over a nearby fuel tank. The leak was reported about 7:50 a.m., according to the Virginia Department of Emergency Management, and about 1,000 residents are believed to be affected by the incident near the town of Gloucester, about 12 miles southeast of Richmond. A Facebook video of the site showed at least three burn barrels emitting a substantial amount of smoke near a house, as well as a boat parked in the driveway of a home on River Road. Many nearby streets have been blocked off by police, and an evacuation order was put into effect in the surrounding community of Martin's Point, which is about 2 miles from Gloucester. "Those closures have been basically for the residents' safety, until fire departments and appropriate agencies arrive and can provide that safety to the communities," ADEMA Assistant Commissioner of Communications Steve Berry said in a news release. The community manager of Martin's Point, Bronwen Coslow, said a shelter-in-place is in effect until further notice. "It was a little frustrating to have no people on the ground, but we were waiting to hear from state and county officials if evacuations are necessary," Coslow said. The leak is believed to be from a tank on the property of an Uno Casino that is based around Gloucester Harbor. Investigators were at the scene on Wednesday afternoon removing a fire hose from the rubble surrounding the tank. "A fire hydrant will be utilized to create a small source of water that will then be directed where it is needed," Berry said. A nearby emergency medical helicopter will pick up ambulance patients as needed, Berry said, and a Red Cross has been pre-positioned for people to use. Residents have been told to stay away from Martin's Point so far, and
