Elden Ring setting:

- An Age like no other in the history of the Known World. An age of great power, and an age of transition. The lands of the Land Between are covered in darkness; the land between the dead and the living. Mastered by the power of the Lich King and sealed by his enchantments, the undead roam the world. This age of conflict is fraught with dangers, a place of chaos, where a village is always marching into battle. It is an age of power and might, a world of tumult and drama.
- Beautifully rendered! Robust fantasy world recreated with an artist's perfection.

----- Playable characters will appear in specific spots of the world in the following order: #1 Aeon: #2 Calia: ----- All the other characters are dead. (The order of the dead characters is arbitrary.) ----- The Tale of Anima. #1 Aeon: I was born into a family of farmers who were as poor as dirt, leading my childhood to be filled with hardship. I was never particularly close to my parents, spending my time secretly reading books in my room. My parents were opposed to the idea of educating me with the help of magic, reasoning that I lacked the intellect to learn. Yet I had the strong intuition that an idea with merit could easily take me far, and I secretly decided to learn magic at the risk of them missing out. Soon I was unleashing terrible curses upon my parents, even as they stumbled upon me so often. My parents were arrested and imprisoned, and I was placed in a foster home with an old witch who, despite her own poverty, taught me all the magical arts that she knew. Once I was finished with her lessons, she told me that I had the ability to summon all living beings, or "Anima," and made me promise to use it only to save someone, and when that person was saved, to bring their soul to her. The voices of the people who had been saved whispered in the air, telling me that I needed to go to Kalin to save the ruler of the existing lands. Although my instinct told me that I must obey the people, I had secretly made a contract with the witch, where I promised to go to Kalin and complete my ritual of summoning, hence the reason why I am in this land. I'm not really sure where I came from, but I am not sure which land I will be staying in. #2 Calia: Although I was born in the provinces, I was raised in the capital and surrounded by strong, powerful knights. My parents had been knights, and due to their position, I had been raised by a woman who protected the stability of the country. She took pleasure in teaching me the skills of the nobility. My mother, who favored her husband greatly, was often absent from home, and I was often left alone with the woman who taught me all I needed to know. The woman informed me that I was the only
