i'm not saying it's a FFXIII clone or anything but this IS a pretty fun game. I got the "Final Fantasy Type-0" on launch day from my then-boyfriend, with the bundled "Platina PSP Case and Pearl Handbag" and had this game right away.

i probably should also mention this is the "Final Fantasy Type-0" which has a PS2 remake by Square Enix and it's actually pretty interesting.

[Preliminary analysis of the biochemical characteristics of psoriasis]. Three biochemical parameters--uric acid, oxypurine and acid phosphatase--in psoriatic scale extracts were tested on some psoriatics, various skin nonpsoriatics, and healthy donors. The results of these tests revealed low oxypurine concentration. A certain correlation was detected between oxypurine and psoriatic sex. This finding may support the hypothesis about the possible fact of transferrin alteration in psoriatic hyperproliferation. Travel Tuesday - Vancouver We all need a break from work at least once a month - for me, it's a week in Vancouver. There are so many fun things to do, and our trip is much more than just "three days in Vancouver". Here are some things we do on the week we are here: Dinner at Illana - a Michelin-starred restaurant, where you can dine next to windows that overlook the water. Drinks at Rooster's Vancouver - a gastropub with a great outdoor patio - you can almost see the mountain ranges in the background While we are all starving after dinner, there are some really neat food markets like Granville Island or Gastown - you can browse through an eclectic range of curio shops, makers, and shops. We also spent a few days strolling the Stanley Park - especially loved going to see the ballet, and going to dinner (an Å¼ber cool Michelin-starred restaurant that looks out over the woods). Also, any trip to Vancouver needs to include
