Watch the FIFA 22 trailer with EA SPORTS FIFA 21 developer Mark Carruthers here. FIFA 22 sees a lot of progression in many areas. New all-star teams, bespoke live stadiums, improved transfers system, and a bold reinvention of Ultimate Team - FIFA 18's 2.0. Kicking off the new franchise is Expected One-on-One, a new all-star system where players are selected from across the globe and assigned specific style of play. Players will have a broad range of attributes and playstyles, meaning there will be many squads that are great for fast, technical players, but not so good for defenders. Two squads can now be previewed from each all-star team, which can be viewed on-line. This will provide fans the chance to choose their favourite new all-star coach/captain. FIFA 18's fan-made community will be excited to know that there will be a brand-new Fan Competition, in which fans can submit their own ideas and designs into PlayNow mode. This will allow fans to vote for their favourite, and see their design come to life as a real-life match. FIFA 22 introduces the Squad Builder system, which will see fans be able to create their own squads from a range of different standard kits, different goals, and different masterpieces. FIFA Live is growing with even more modes, and a range of competitions - both domestically and internationally - for fans to experience. In FIFA 20, fans could enter through-ball challenges in Live Matchday mode. FIFA Live in FIFA 22 introduces Through-ball Challenges. It sees two teams face-off in a real-time five-on-five match, with half the duration played as a three-on-three contest. Teams will be able to tackle with the ball, and play it in. This offers fans a new competition format.

Desensitization and internalization of the endothelin B receptor in human astrocytoma cells. Endothelin (ET) is a potent vasoactive peptide that is expressed in glial cells of the human central nervous system. At its receptor, ET exerts diverse effects on glial cells, including differentiation, proliferation, and migration. However, little is known about the regulation of ET receptors on glial cells. We examined the expression and regulation of the endothelin B (ET(B)) receptor in astrocytoma cells. These cells express mRNA for the ET(B) receptor but very little (approximately 20% of the monocyte ET(B) receptor) of the receptor protein. Cyclic AMP up-regulates the receptor in these cells. Phospholipase C is important in signaling for the up-regulation. The ET(B) receptor down-regulates on stimulation with peptide agonists, and the kinetics of down-regulation are similar to those observed for other G-protein coupled receptors. De novo synthesis of receptor protein is not required. Treatment with the protein synthesis inhibitor cycloheximide does not prevent receptor down-regulation, suggesting that receptor internalization is not required for down-regulation. A decrease in receptor binding sites is concomitant with receptor down-regulation. This down-
