Playmaker Evaluation – Once again, FIFA is seeking to improve your gameplay. The backbone of FIFA’s Playmaker system is the new Playmaker Evaluation component. This is another vital part of the footballing blueprint that promises to give the best players on the pitch the best overall gameplay. While introducing new gameplay features and regulations for players to work with, the Playmaker Evaluation will help players take control of the game, giving them the ability to adapt to any situation on the field. Furthermore, the game can also evaluate their performance during competitive matches and adjust accordingly. All of the 23 new body types in FIFA 22 have been created using motion capture data from real-life players. Each body type has been individually tested, making sure that the standard foot movement of that body type was correct before moving onto any gameplay elements.

The Improved Sprinting This year you can experience realistic sprinting animations thanks to the “Surfacespeed” feature in the sprinting animations. When sprinting, the footstep animation is carried out in an animated manner, and the player is able to run on grass and hard surfaces with motion capture data from real players. The sprinting animation is based on the type of surface the player is sprinting on. Underneath the surface, the player is not sprinting on land but on a large grass mat. FIFA’s personnel took motion capture data from a large number of players, creating the grass mat and then tested it. A player will sprint using the body type and sprinting animations used when playing the game. The animation takes advantage of the “Surfacespeed” feature of the sprinting animation. Meanwhile, the new AI creates a more realistic image of how a player would react during a sprint. It will start to run more quickly on grass, with the footsteps of a player who sprints more quickly on grass. For players who sprint on dirt, the AI also makes sprinting on dirt easier. Human players don’t typically run at speeds near their bodyweight (after a certain threshold) as they don’t have to move too fast. In FIFA 22, the player’s walking speed has been adjusted to account for the speed at which the player is forced to run when sprinting. When a player sprints, the player will sprint at a speed closer to his bodyweight. In real life, a player will not run so fast that he can no

From mud to magic! FIFA is the king of football simulation! Compete in a virtual football game season after season, master your skills on your computer or mobile device, or on the PlayStation 4, Xbox One or Wii U consoles. Highlights INNOVATIONS PORTFOLIOS Powered by Football It's all about the ball. FIFA introduces a host of innovations focused on delivering tighter, more balanced gameplay and more diverse gameplay mechanics. The dynamic nature of the ball impacts multiple aspects of the game including ball control, individual plays, and team tactics. First, the ball physics model is re-tuned so the ball sits a little higher in the air. This gives the ball, and the player, more chance to be hit by opponents and allows less defensive blocks. Players with low physicality (like CBs) will find that the ball can be intercepted more often, while others with higher physicality (like forwards) are more efficient at controlling the ball. This is only the beginning of the improvements in ball control. The FIFA of the past was a game where a goalkeeper would have difficulty catching a ball at the feet. The new ball physics model allows a goalkeeper to stop a shot at the feet (pitch side) more often than before. While most of the attention here is on the goalkeeper, the ball control system will make it easier for all 11 players on the field to play off the goalkeeper. With the reworked player controlled attack, players will find that more movement options open up and they will now have more chance to get past a defender on their way to the ball or to create space. Finally, the reworked pass physics model will make it easier to hit an accurate, one-to-one pass both on the ground and in the air. Picking the ball up will now be simpler and defenders and teammates will now stay closer to the ball. This helps keep the field in your control, and the result will be more one-on-ones and more single player runs by teammates.
