Using this technology, the "Shot Speed" system analyses accurate movement data from the match to allow players to take accurate and quick shots. In addition, the "Jumping & Balance" system will allow players to execute ambitious dribbling and movement in attacking areas. Players will also be able to change their ball course using their movement. "We are extremely excited to announce that we have worked with 22 world-class players over the past two years, using motion capture technology to record their movements in top-level competitions, and create the FIFA 22 Player Motion V.I.E.L. to showcase their shooting and dribbling abilities," said PES and FIFA Technical Director Alex Hunter. "Combining all of these data sets using 'HyperMotion' technology, we have been able to create a highly accurate representation of players. Now, we have been able to improve all of the game's mechanics to better reflect what these players can really do in real-life." "We are honoured to have helped to revolutionise football simulation gaming with the development of the FIFA 22 Player Motion V.I.E.L.," commented Yu Kanokura, SIE's Head of Games Business Development. "Our collaboration with FIFA and our network of some of the most high-performance players in the world gives us the opportunity to help further the evolution of a truly immersive, authentic simulation experience." "During the development cycle of FIFA 20, we re-evaluated the way we develop and test our games and did extensive research into what makes a next-gen shooter tick," added Hunter. "This work informed our development of the Player Motion V.I.E.L. to allow our motion capture data set to breathe and really help us capture a player's individual movement, speed and stamina. When a player has the ability to really move and run around, feel the pressure of scoring a goal and know the amount of space they have to get into to shoot, our Player Motion V.I.E.L. gives them a lifelike and authentic experience." The motion capture data collection process involved the 22 real-life players running, jumping and tackling with the industry's most accurate motion capture suit, the V.I.E.L. Each player recorded their movements over a period of three hours, including: runs and sprints to keep pace with the action; realistic

What's new in Fifa 22:

- FIFA 22 introduces "HyperMotion Technology," which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay.
- Concern over the knee is a very real issue amongst players. With the introduction of a new and improved knee system, players can now recover from fouls and in the case of a knock-on, look to get back on their feet.
- FIFA's control scheme is once again put under the microscope. In an attempt to simplify the controls and end the debate over the best way to control the game, FIFA 22 introduces tweaked controls such as: Assist buttons replaced with a big button that must be pressed in a specific order. Players now ride up and down upon running to maintain a constant speed. Aiming is now an on-line pursuit that can be cycled in and out by pressing the correct button in the correct sequence. A new control scheme has been designed to improve the player control experience and make it dead simple.
- FIFA took a look at the pant pocket on the back of the shorts for its FIFA World Class Men's Player trial design. The player has his pockets from waist to shin fully exposed, so there's no need for long trouser sleeves which can snag the player and create an obstruction, nor are there pockets that can get in the way of the player's movement and disrupt the ball.
