What's new in Frutakia 2:

.0 is here and it is rocking! As Tango Pickles requested we have a banner. We also do not have the best theme, but we will get an updated theme soon. We hope you enjoy it. Norseman Attention all the readers who enjoy my comics, I have recently used a new hosting company, Skidra and Martini. The problems with Skidra are that the downloads usually don't work, but that the comments work. I will be importing all my old webcomics to Skidra before going to Martini. All comments will still work with Skidra, but the readers will not get notifications on new updates. Until the move is complete I will post the three most recent updates here. I will also try to get a new site going with my new hosting company as soon as possible. The Mercury Swifts was a pretty awesome ride. The first generation of Mercury gyro was pretty awesome and it has plenty of range! It is really rare for me to complain about a ride. The new generation of the Mercury Skyships is expected to come out this summer. It will sport a new electronic throttle to help with handling issues at low speeds, plus a brand new color scheme. Not only that but we will see a new trade dress as well. Let's take a look at the first image! You won't see Mercury Skyships flying low when they race on the seas. That's because the new skyships will have a reduced upper wingspan, as well as smaller canards and bigger ailerons. This will help increase the skyships speed while reducing the air drag and potentially offering a better skyships handling. So far we have had little information on what the trade dress will look like. We do know that X-wing, and some other Star Wars related logos are included. We also know that the new skyship logo will include the Mercury brand. I posted an update on Baby I'm a Star a while back. Tango Pickles did a webcomic called Pim and Tanto and he asked me to post it on my blog. Things will remain the same, so check it out. At my request, Hasbro have now released some official images of the upcoming Battle Packs! As usual I will post a picture of the front and back of the cards. Feel free to break out the
