The only thing that was practically successful was a "streaming" gimmick for April Fools Day. YouTube has plenty of such pranks. The most popular prank was an April Fools live stream called "Haunted House. The stream was promoted via YouTube and came just in time to pull in a lot of new subscribers and reach over 100,000 live viewers. There are a lot of streaming services out there. But YouTube? There's no other reason that this streaming event should be on YouTube. March Madness (since 2010) has been a staple on the streaming service, but thankfully it wasn't. April Fools has been known for a long time. Your friend has probably been pulling one off for years. Feb 21, 2020 It's time to end that Happy Meal nightmare!
