Thieves siphoned off $1 million from an armoured truck in a brazen daytime robbery in which three men cased the truck from across the street before attacking the workers. Stopped at a red light, the truck was the target of a con game played by a group of three men who waited outside the truck and convinced the thieves to help them get into the truck after they told the truck driver they needed help. The men then took a flat-bed truck and rammed it through the wall of the building into the office where the thieves were inside and stole between $1 million and $1.5 million in cash and jewellery and other items. A Bank of Montreal truck and two others were rammed through a wall on Beaconsfield Ave. in east-end Montreal on Aug. 13, 2016. (CBC) "I think it's a scam. I think it's a scheme and I think it was done to make some money," said the truck driver

This is an ARM Powershell script. As there were resources I needed to create, I needed to get AzureRm resource id. If possible to create these resources the same time. I'll use the Powershell function Get-AzureRmResource, but this script never finishes, because Get-AzureRmResource says also that he is listing dependencies. And thus powershell is abscendingly really slow. I also tried with Get-AzureRmResource -CreationExpression "$id = new-azurestorageaccount -ResourceGroupName 'ExcelWorkBook' -Location 'Germany' -Name 'Excel1';id; New-AzureRmResourceGroup -ResourceGroupName 'ExcelWorkBook' -Location 'Germany' -Name 'Excel2';id" but got the same result. Is there a way to fix this? I want to be able to create this resources. I tried the same code in C# console app and it's working. But powershell ofcourse asking. I turned on verbose warnings but that doesn't help either, because I don't know what to look for. Proteins with dual glutamate/aspartate specificity: insights into the sequence requirements for Glu- and Asp-recognition in nature. Most known motifs in proteins are derived from aspartate-containing domains. Less is known about the functions of motifs composed of glutamate and aspartate residues, despite the prevalence of glutamate/aspartate motifs in proteins of all living organisms. Here we report two new glutamate/aspartate-specificities within the SARS-CoV 3a protein (32% sequence identity with the SARS 3C-like proteinase-triggering domain of the 3CL protease of SARS coronavirus). The first specificity
