It broke off relations with the United States and it's considering kicking the U.S. out of the U.N. It was a stunning act of defiance. In December the Americans had an embassy in Mexico, and Mexico had an embassy in Washington. Today the Mexico government announced its decision to cut off diplomatic relations with the United States. It will no longer send its ambassador to the U.S. and will no longer send its flags or other insignia to display at its embassy. "In the history of the republic, we've never had relations with other governments that were at our level," President Enrique Peña Nieto said in a televised address to the nation. The Mexican president said that his country severed diplomatic relations with the United States after the U.S. declared the Mexican government unworthy of his government's support after the last presidential election. "The hostile attitude of the United States government has eroded the historic friendship" between the two countries, Peña Nieto said. The President said the decision was part of a newly proactive foreign policy designed to counter the "unilateralism" of the U.S. government e79caf774b

Officers were called to Lick Run Hunting Club after James McDonald, 28, was shot Sunday night, but he was pronounced dead at a hospital. Police said McDonald and his father were hunting when the dispute began. James was not wearing hearing protection, and he and his father then got into a physical altercation, which eventually led to James firing at his father, police said. He told authorities that he feared for his life, according to NBC Pittsburgh. James McDonald, 28, was fatally shot after his father disarmed him during a dispute over a shotgun, according to a report. James, pictured, was dressed as a hunter at the time of the shooting. Authorities said he wore no protection Authorities said James fired six shots at the unarmed man, hitting him in the torso. The dad was not injured. A couple who was part of the club ran from the scene and called police, but authorities arrived a few minutes after the shooting. Officers said James had a valid hunting license, and he was lawfully on the premises as a guest, the report stated. Police said they were investigating the incident, which is believed to have happened around 9 p.m. Pennsylvania has some of the strictest

Renal cell carcinoma has a high propensity to metastasize to bone. Radiological-morphological correlation and prognostic factors were analyzed in iliac bone metastases. Between 2001 and 2006, we retrospectively reviewed the hospital radiology and pathology records of patients who presented with iliac bone metastasis of renal cell carcinoma. Clinical features, time of diagnosis, sites of metastasis, radiological, and morphological features were analyzed. A Kaplan-Meier analysis was used to evaluate factors affecting survival. Forty-six patients (40 males and 6 females) were found to have iliac metastasis with a mean age of 58 years and a mean follow-up of 8.8 months. The primary site of renal cell carcinoma was in the right kidney in 29 patients and left kidney in 17. The sites of metastasis were in the iliac bone only in 23, in the ilium with the sacrum in 11, and with the lumbar vertebrae in 12. Bone destruction was by lytic in 38 patients (83%), mixed in 3 patients (7%), and sclerotic in 5 patients (11%). All patients had imaging studies, and 39 patients underwent biopsy. Treatment was performed as recommended by the guidelines of the National Comprehensive Cancer Network. The mean survival was 24.2 months and significantly longer for patients who did not have malignant cells on biopsy. For all patients, the sites of bone metastasis at the time of diagnosis were correlated with survival, although only the iliac metastasis was significant ($p = 0.05$). The site of iliac metastasis was found to affect survival in patients with iliac bone metastasis of renal cell carcinoma, with greater survival in those who did not have malignant cells on biopsy. One of the most difficult tasks for a research leader is deciding what to present and where to present it at the meeting of scholars and researchers. The researcher has an abundance of scientific information to
