SummaryRoute [Mac/Win]

SummaryRoute is a software application designed for quickly calculating the optimized route when it comes to the protocol network traffic. It has a simple interface that is simple to use. When you launch the software, a standard window with few features incorporated will appear. Firstly, you can use the file browser to open a plain text document (TXT) with written IP addresses, with the help of the file browser ("drag and drop" is not supported). Unfortunately, you cannot open multiple documents at the same time. With the simple click of a button, you can load the IPs into the application, so that it automatically calculates the best summary route concerning the IP and netmask. These details can be exported to a TXT file for further analysis and use. The straightforward software application is pretty low-demanding in regard to the CPU and system memory. It has a good response time to key strokes and mouse events, and quickly calculates the optimized route, without causing the operating system to hang, crash or display error dialogs. SummaryRoute SummaryRoute v1.2 SummaryRoute v1.1 SummaryRoute v1.0 Regulation of c-fos protein synthesis in smooth muscle cells by EGF and IGF-I. Treatment of rat aortic smooth muscle (A7r5) cells with 20 ng/ml epidermal growth factor (EGF) induced the synthesis of c-fos, a member of the Fos/jun family of transcription factors. Serum deprivation (48 h) and retinoic acid treatment (8 h) also induced c-fos gene expression. This was followed by a detectable accumulation of c-fos mRNA after 8 h of EGF treatment (0.1-10 ng/ml). Treatment of A7r5 cells with IGF-I (0.01-10 ng/ml) also caused a dose-dependent increase in c-fos gene expression. EGF- and IGF-I-induced c-fos expression was blocked by addition of protein or RNA synthesis inhibitors, or removal of serum. The kinetics of EGF- and IGF-I-induced c-fos expression were similar to that of a serum-induced response, suggesting that the mitogenic effect of EGF may be mediated by c-fos expression. Expression of c-fos in the A7r5 cells was time- and dose-dependent, and was detectable within 30 b7e8fdf5c8
