ESR1 gene polymorphism Arg⁸⁷²Gln is associated with prognosis and recurrence in early breast cancer patients. ER is one of the most important prognostic and predictive factors in ER-positive breast cancer and plays a vital role in the development of ER-positive breast cancer. The ESR1 gene is a gene that encodes ER. Polymorphisms in ESR1 gene have been suggested to be associated with cancers but studies to validate this hypothesis are controversial. Here we investigated the association of ESR1 gene polymorphisms Arg872Gln and Trp574Leu with survival of early breast cancer (EBC) patients. Cases were genotyped for ESR1 gene polymorphisms by PCR and restriction fragment length polymorphism (RFLP) assay. The association of ESR1 gene polymorphisms with EBC survival was analyzed by Kaplan-Meier survival curves and log-rank tests. The ESR1 genotype frequencies were significantly different between the cases and controls. Patients with the CG + GG genotypes had a higher relative risk of recurrence (OR: 2.42; p = 0.0023) and a poorer DFS (p = 0.0023).
