I am a movie lover and also a movie fan. So I always watch every movie.Q: Adding entries to multidimensional array inside a loop I am trying to create a function that creates a defined number of radio buttons and places them into a multidimensional array (not a single array). Here is my code so far: $i, "name" => "section".$i); } return $rows; } ?> This returns an error: Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach() What am I doing wrong? A: The first parameter in foreach should be either an array or an object implementing the IteratorAggregate interface, which array does not. This is what you need: $i = 0; $rows = array(); foreach (range(0, $number) as $index) { $rows[] = array("id" => $i, "name" => "section".$i); $i++; } Note the second parameter is now index References: e79caf774b
