What's new in Elden Ring:

2012-12-12 Cyberpunk has been around for decades, used in early computer games by dozens of companies including some of the originals. Though the genre as a whole has certainly developed since then, cyberpunk remains to be an intriguing idea with lot of potential, and there are some games out there that really deliver the goods, on the other hand. Observation is one of them. Reluctantly but decisively, it has released a new patch that adds new classes, among other things, adding to the roster of eight playable. The Ring Around the Rooster "The Ring Around the Rooster" is a nursery rhyme, listed by author, Robert Reginald Tatham (1777-1849) in his English nursery rhymes and jingles, published in 1826. It contains a question and answer format with the repeated line "What makes my wife leave me? / It's because my rooster crows", followed by, in volume 1, the rhyming responses of "Jerusalem", "The farmer who minds his bees", "Captain John Smith", "The duck and the drake", "The speckled hen", "The blacksmith", "Jack and Jill", "The man who mows his lawn" and "Jack be nimble, Jack be quick / And Jack jump over the candlestick". Originally recorded in the book of jokes entitled Jests, Songs and Stories (1815), the origin of the lyrics is unknown. Reasons for the story In Robert Tatham's version, John Smith answers "Its the cockney wallop, John Smith" "The farmer who minds his bees, John Smith" and "The speckled hen, John Smith." "If the note of celery be stuck, Johnny, on thy door, 'tis there thou'st mistake, "Johnny hymeneal". "But if thou dost find from conversation, Johnny, the lady's note "Wilt have thy first-born, Johnny, for a booty?", John Jones salutes thee, and doesn't sing "chits, chits, sempes in his ash well." In some older versions of the text "There was an old man lived in a shoe" is followed by an answer of "Because he followed his nose"; "Lord, what makes
