Please look at the time stamp on the story to see when it was last updated. Please enable Javascript to watch this video About 150 protesters were arrested outside a Beverly Hills Police Department precinct Saturday after a confrontation between demonstrators and officers, according to reports. Officials with the Beverly Hills Police Department said they responded to calls reporting "civil unrest" after 150 people wearing masks and holding signs protesting police brutality marched from City Hall to a police station, KTLA sister station, ABC 7 said. The demonstration, organized by #BlackLivesMatter, reportedly reached the Beverly Hills Police Department building, about 5:30 p.m., before police blocked the protesters from entering, blocking their way with police cars and police trailers. Reports of demonstrators attacking officers followed, with officers reportedly using pepper spray to subdue the crowd. "We did not enter the police station because it was declared no longer a safe environment. We did not see any violence. We were told that someone was being hurt," John McCoy, a member of the Black Lives Matter movement, told CNN. "The police department is claiming that our peaceful march turned violent and we are not going to accept that." Video from the march showed demonstrators blocking intersections and shouting profanities at officers, at times throwing tomatoes at officers. Protesters chanted "Mike Brown was murdered!" and "Hands up, don't shoot!" as they marched down Beverly Boulevard, while two "Black Lives Matter" protesters were arrested after police claimed they tried to assault an officer and refused to get off the sidewalk, according to local reports. The officers were identified as a mix of patrol officers and police officers in riot gear. Beverly Hills Police Chief Patrick Gannon said the department will conduct an "extensive review" of the officers' actions during the protest. "We can certainly better educate our officers on what is lawful and what is not lawful," he said. However,
