The primary focus will be on the post-translational synthesis, transport, and secretion of ceruloplasmin which normally occurs within the Golgi apparatus and plasma membrane. We have previously shown that the level of plasma ceruloplasmin in man is inversely related to the amount of hepatic copper, an established risk factor for development of liver disease (Wilson, 1983). We will now concentrate on the synthesis, transport, and secretion of ceruloplasmin in normal adult 6d1f23a050
