Manual Pharyngeal Pumping with Pharyngeal Distention as an Effective Treatment for Pharyngeal Stenosis: A Prospective Case Series. We evaluated the effects of manual pharyngeal pumping with pharyngeal distention in reducing pharyngeal stenosis and restoring swallowing function. Pharyngeal stenosis is common in elderly patients with dysphagia. Pharyngeal stenosis is caused by movement of the hyoid bone and tensor veli palatini muscle. To prevent aspiration pneumonia, an effective treatment is to relieve pharyngeal stenosis.

However, there is no standard treatment, and few reports have been published. We performed manual pharyngeal pumping with pharyngeal distention for patients with pharyngeal stenosis who underwent a modified Blount procedure. Swallowing function was evaluated using the Functional Oral Intake Scale and video fluoroscopic swallowing study (VFSS). The functional improvement was evaluated after manual pharyngeal pumping was performed once a day for 3 days. In 17 patients with pharyngeal stenosis who had undergone a modified Blount procedure, severe dysphagia symptoms (modified Blount procedure score  $\geq 8$ ) before manual pharyngeal pumping improved to mild dysphagia symptoms (modified Blount procedure score
