IT WAS a moment to savour. Fittingly, it came in a different part of the country to where the Crystal Palace winger would be if his future was not so uncertain. Yet Dickson Etuhu was happy to savour another part of life after celebrating his 30th birthday on Sunday with a trip to the art-deco city of Málaga in southern Spain. The good news from Palace yesterday was that the deal to sell Etuhu – for free – to Crystal Palace for a year has now been completed. The bad news for the Eagles, however, is that the £250,000 they received for Etuhu was not the full fee they were hoping for. The British transfer window is closed but Etuhu is still part of the England Under-21 squad, which means that an appearance in the European Championships in France next summer could raise his value. Since signing for Palace in 2007, Dickson has had to settle for a league championship medal, a rise to fourth-choice left-back and a move down the left-hand side of the pitch. But he has got used to playing on the opposite flank, which was the position he got stuck in when Steve Bruce was at Leeds and later Fulham. At Palace he has got many more games at left-back, including at the European Under-21 Championship. The most important aspect of Etuhu's summer has been the break – which he will use to recharge the battery and prepare for the hard grind of the Premier League. Dickson played for England Under-19 in the summer and was part of the team that finished second at the UEFA Under-19 Championship in Turkey. He has since been called up to Stuart Pearce's Under-21 squad but is unlikely to feature. He still sees himself as an attacking left-back, but who knows? England manager Steve McClaren may have a change of heart and use Dickson at left-back in France. Etuhu's move, however, will still lead to a players' union ball and Etuhu will have to
